At The Zoo

Someone told me,
It's all happening At The Zoo.
I do believe it,
I do believe it's true.

It's a light and tumble journey,
From the East Side to the park.
Just a fine and fancy ramble
To the zoo.

But you can take the crosstown bus,
If it's raining or it's cold,
And the animals will love it,
If you do, if you do.
Something tells me,
It's all happening At The Zoo.
I do believe it,
I do believe it's true

The monkeys stand for honesty,
Giraffes are insincere,
And the elephants are kindly, but They're dumb.
Orangutans are skeptical
Of changes in their cages,
And the zookeeper is very fond of rum.
Zebras are reactionaries,
Antelopes are missionaries,
Pigeons plot in secrecy,
And hamsters turn on frequently.
What a gas! You gotta come and see
At The Zoo.

—Paul Simon

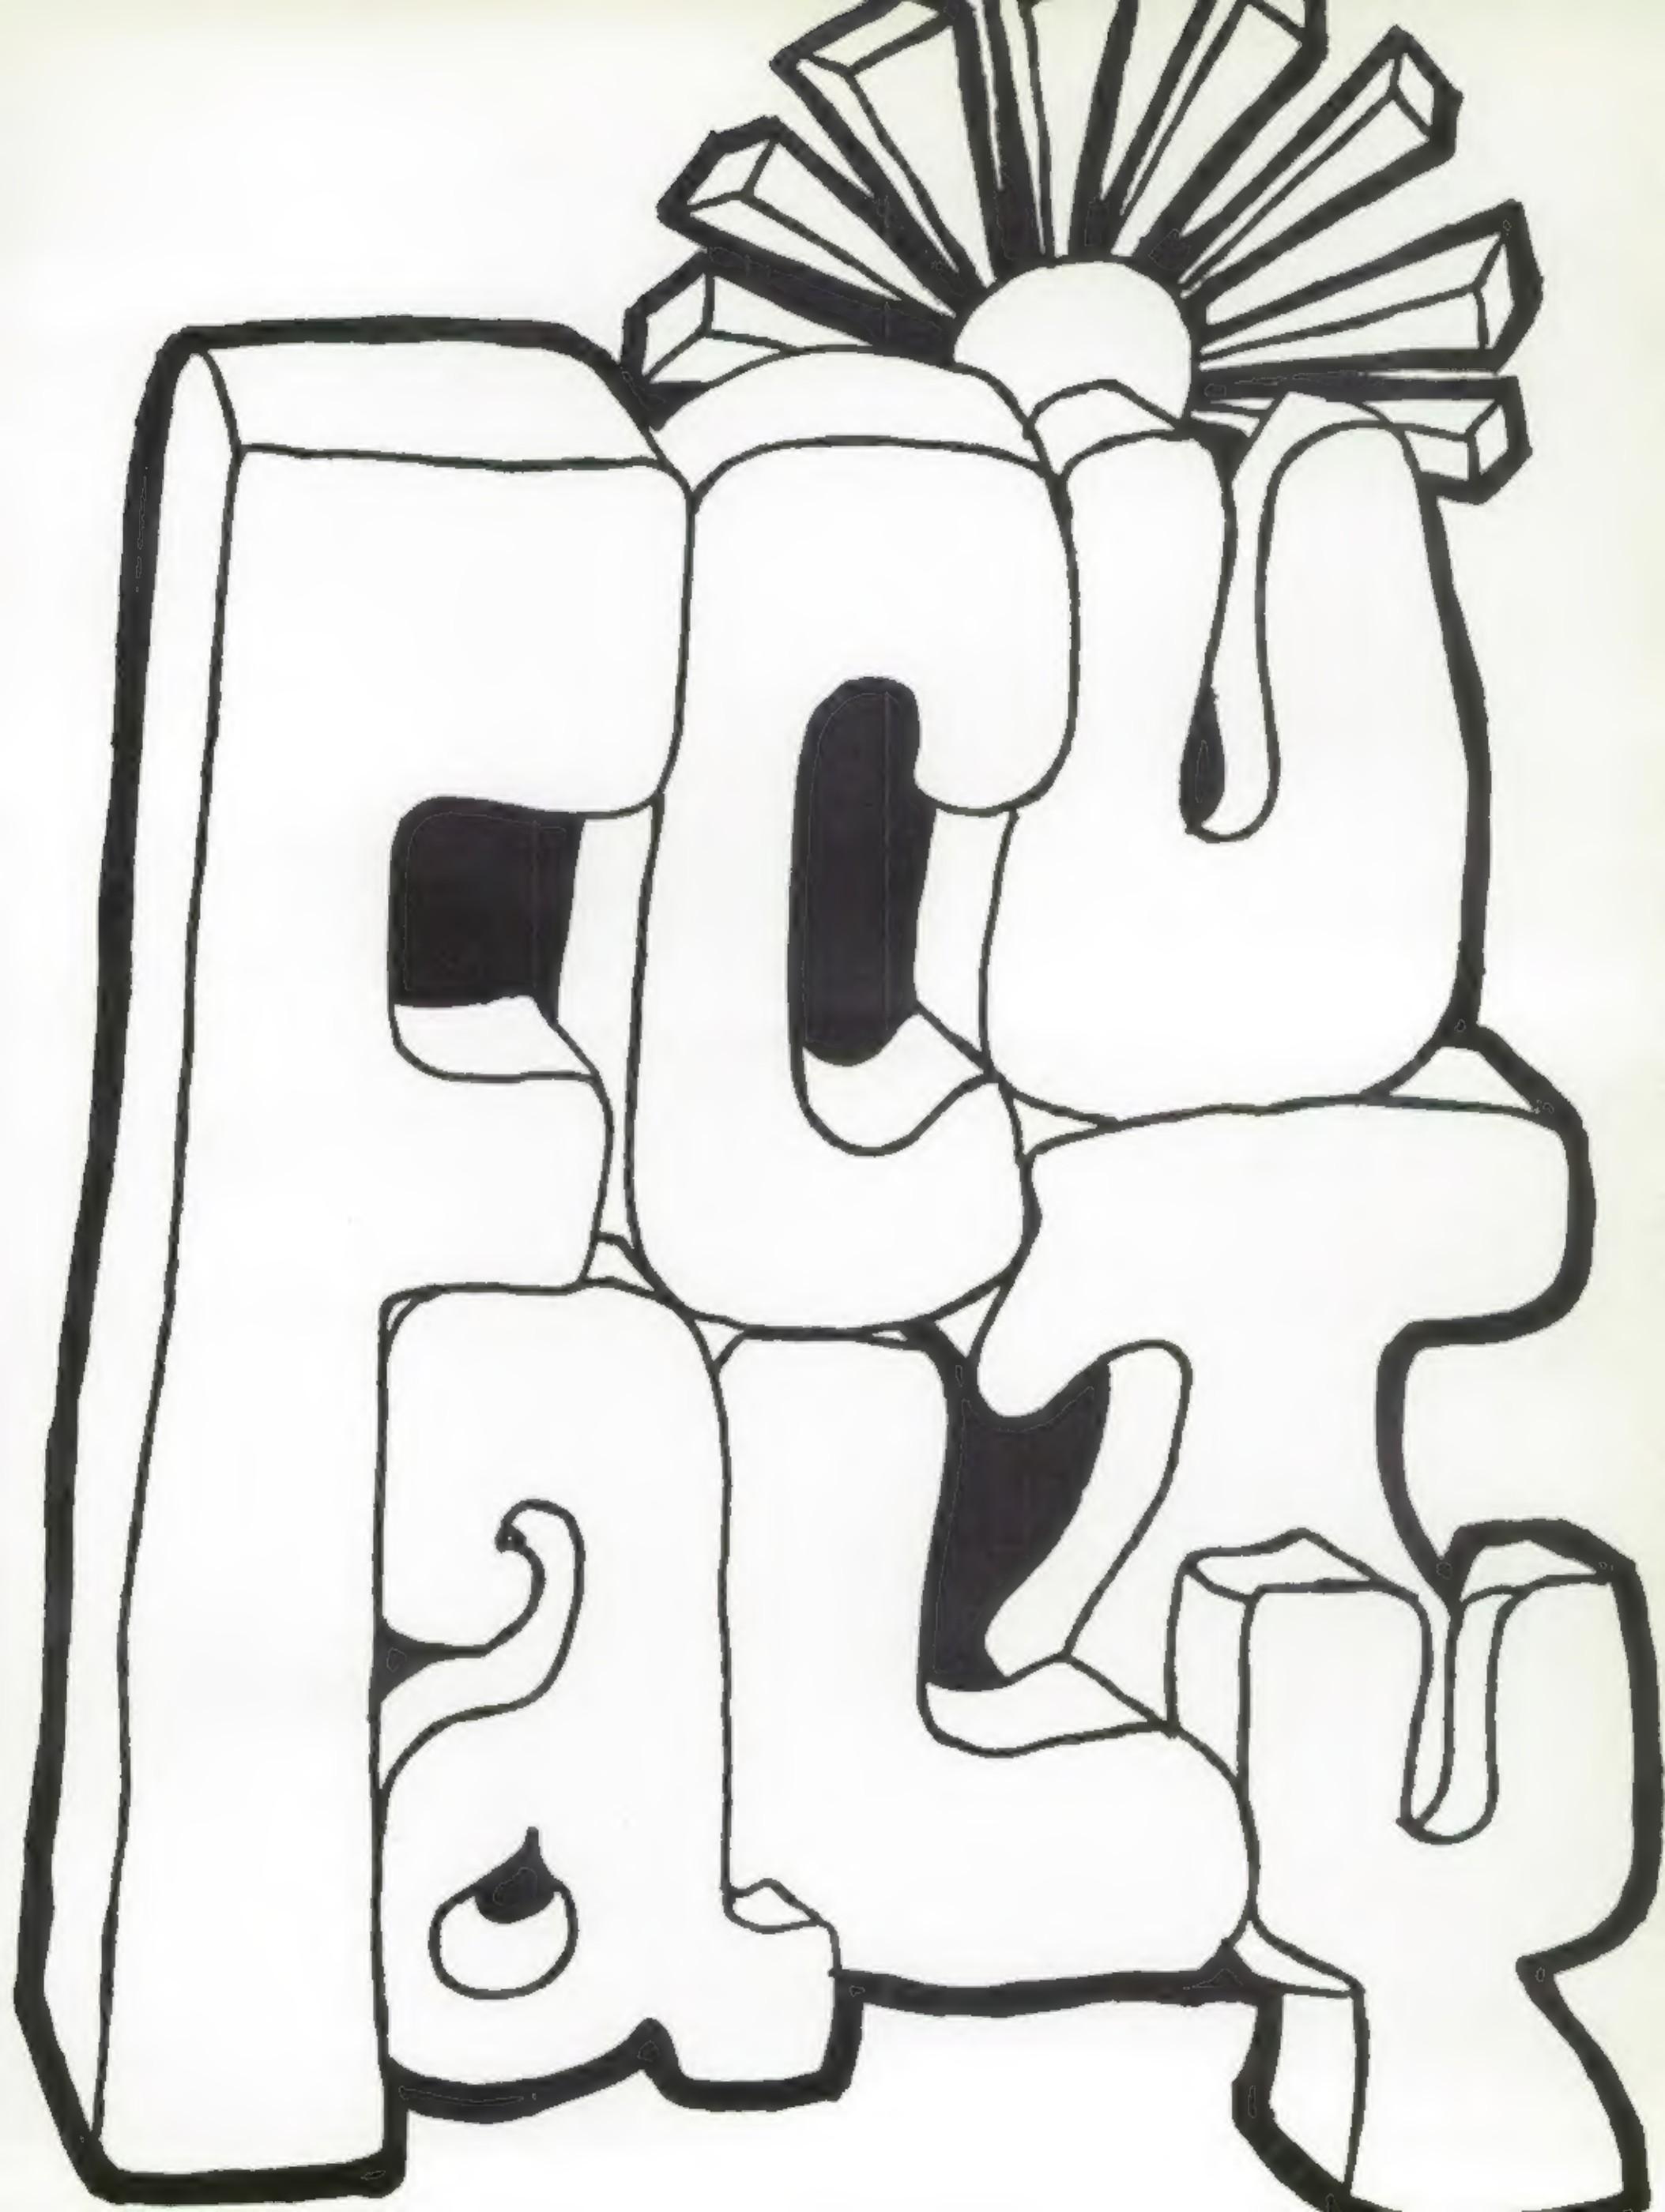

Once upon a time there was an ivy-covered, cupola-ed, nonviolent school. The school was made up of students who managed to keep the administration guessing by being perceptively aware at certain times and reasonably bad at others. And they went through a lot of teachers (or a lot of teachers went through them). In that school it seemed teachers came and went like senior privileges. But once in a while an educator appeared who heard "Oh, I see" more often than most, a teacher who cared about the feelings of a student.

A man came who said things about what our reading meant—things that we had never thought conceivable. And what was most terrifying of all was that it was true. And we'd never seen the light; never given a hint that there was another whole world to be opened up to us. His "task was to find a way to bring people and information together into a dynamic, evolving relationship which honors the integrity of man, the concerns of society, and the nature of knowledge itself. The primary focus, though, must always be on man. Man is the end. Subject matter is the means. Society is the result. Knowledge is power. Man needs to know."¹

And this teacher loves man. The class of '73 has intimately befriended such an educator. We dedicate this book to:

The Road Not Taken

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth,

Then took the other just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim
Because it was grassy and wanted wear,
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden back.
Oh I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I I took the one less traveled by
And that has made all the difference

Robert Frost

Pilgrim

This is a road
One walks alone,
Narrow the tracks
And overgrown

Dark is the way
And hard to find,
When the last village
Drops behind

Never a footfall
Light to show
Fellow traveler—
Yet I know

Someone before
Has trudged his load
In the same footsteps—
This is a road

Hugh Prather

While wandering through the vast ennui
I've come to a conclusion-
Though I find life so important to me
It's only a mere illusion
I'm tired of living in hatred and strife
Where war is trying to smother,
I long to live in a world of peace
Where man can live as brothers
People are funny and people are mean
And people try not to be giving,
They worry the poor and they pick on obscene
And yet they go on with their living
I'm done with the world and with all its fears,
I'm so glad that the night is here

JABBERWOCKY

Two griffs and a flying rabe
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe.
All mimsy were the borogoves,
And more rats are茫e.

Beware the Jabberwock, my son!
The jaws that bite, the claws that catch,
Beware the Jubjub bird, and shun
The frumious Bandersnatch!

He took his vorpal sword in hand:
Long time the manxome foe he sought—
Heavily he beat the plain green plain,
And stood awhile in thought.

And long I grieved, though he stood,
The Jabberwock with eyes of flame,
Came whiffling through the tulgey wood,
And burbled as it came!

One two! One, two! And through and through!
The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!
He left it dead and stilled with its head.
He went galumphing back.

"How cool! How cool! The Jabberwock!
Come to my aid, my beamish boy!
Oxabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"
He chortled in his joy.

ISLANDS

Earth stream and tree encircled by sea
Waves sweep the sand from my island
My sunsets fade
Field and glade wait only for rain
Grain after grain love erodes my High weathered walls which fend off the tide Cradle the wind to my island

Gaunt granite climbs where gulls wheel and glide Mournfully cry o'er my island
My dawn bride's veil, damp and pale,
Dissolves in the sun.
Love's web is spun—cats prowl, mice run
Wreath snatch—hand briars where owls know my eyes.
Violet skies
Touch my island, touch me

Beneath the wind turned wave
Infinite peace
Islands join hands
'Neath heaven's sea

Dark Harbour quays like fingers of stone
Hungry reach from my island.
Clutch sailor's words—pearls and gourds
Are strewn on my shore.
Equal in love, bound in circles.
Earth stream and sea return to the sea
Waves sweep the sand from my island, from me

The Guy in the Glass

When you get what you want in your struggle for perh,
And the world makes you King for a day,
Then go to a mirror and look at yourself,
And see what that guy has to say

For it isn't your Father, or Mother, or Wife
Who judgement upon you must pass,
The teller whose verdict counts most in your life
Is the guy staring back from the glass

He's the teller to please, never mind all the rest,
For he's with you clear up to the end, and you've passed your most difficult, dangerous test,
If the guy in the glass is your friend

You may be like Jack Horner and chisel a plum
And think you're a wonderful guy,
But the man in the glass says you're only a bum,
If you can't look him straight in the eye

You can fool the whole world down the pathway of years,
And get pats on the back as you pass,
But your final reward will be heartache and tears,
If you've cheated the guy in the glass

Gatsby believed in the green light, the orgiastic future that year by year recedes before us. It eluded us then, but that's no matter—tomorrow we will run faster, stretch out our arms farther . . . And one fine morning—

So we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past

Psalm 6

1. How terrifying in the night is the convex face of the black land!
2. Above the world are clouds; they belong to the world
Above the clouds is nothing
3. The lonesome tree in the stony field must feel that everything is in vain. It has never seen a tree. There are no trees
4. I keep thinking: we are not observed Scurf of the only star in the night before it dies
5. The warm wind still is busy making connections
6. I seem very singular. I have no patience Poor Brother That's—all said of the world: "It doesn't do anything"
7. We are traveling at high speed toward a star in the Milky Way. A great quiet is on the face of the earth. My heart is beating too fast. Otherwise everything is in order

It seems to me that everything on earth is bound to change by degrees and is already changing before our eyes. In two or three hundred, perhaps a thousand years—the time does not matter—a new, happy life will come. We shall have no share in that life, of course, but we are living for it, we are working, well, yes, and suffering for it, we are creating it—and that alone is the purpose of our existence, and is our happiness, if you like .

—Chekhov

Don't you feel a change a coming
Yesterday has past
Now let's start living

Yes, we all know it's better
yesterday has past now let's all start living for the one that's going to last.

"read softly because you tread on my dreams"
Yeats

Your children are not your children
They are the sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself
They come through you but not from you,
And though they are with you yet they belong not to you

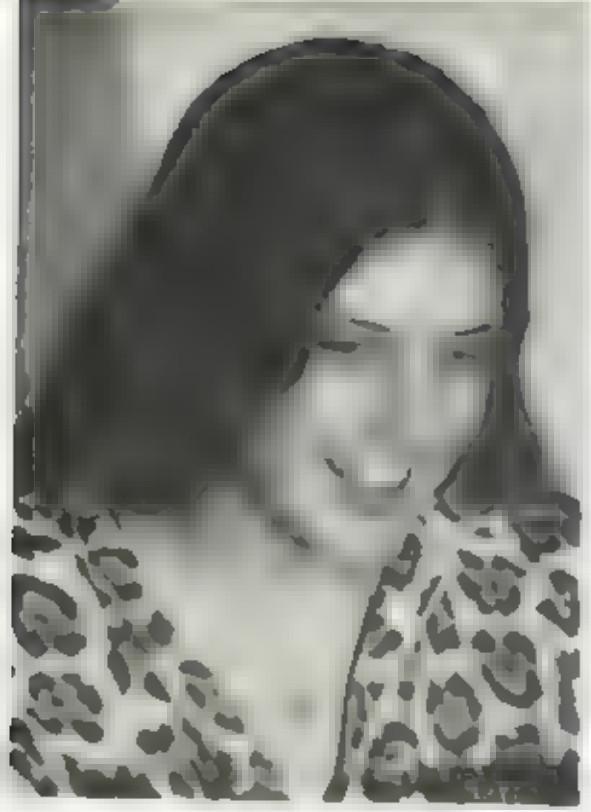

You may give them your love but not your thoughts,
For they have their own thoughts
You may house their bodies but not their souls,
For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams.
You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you,
For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday

You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth

Let your bending in the archer's hand be for gladness

Student Council

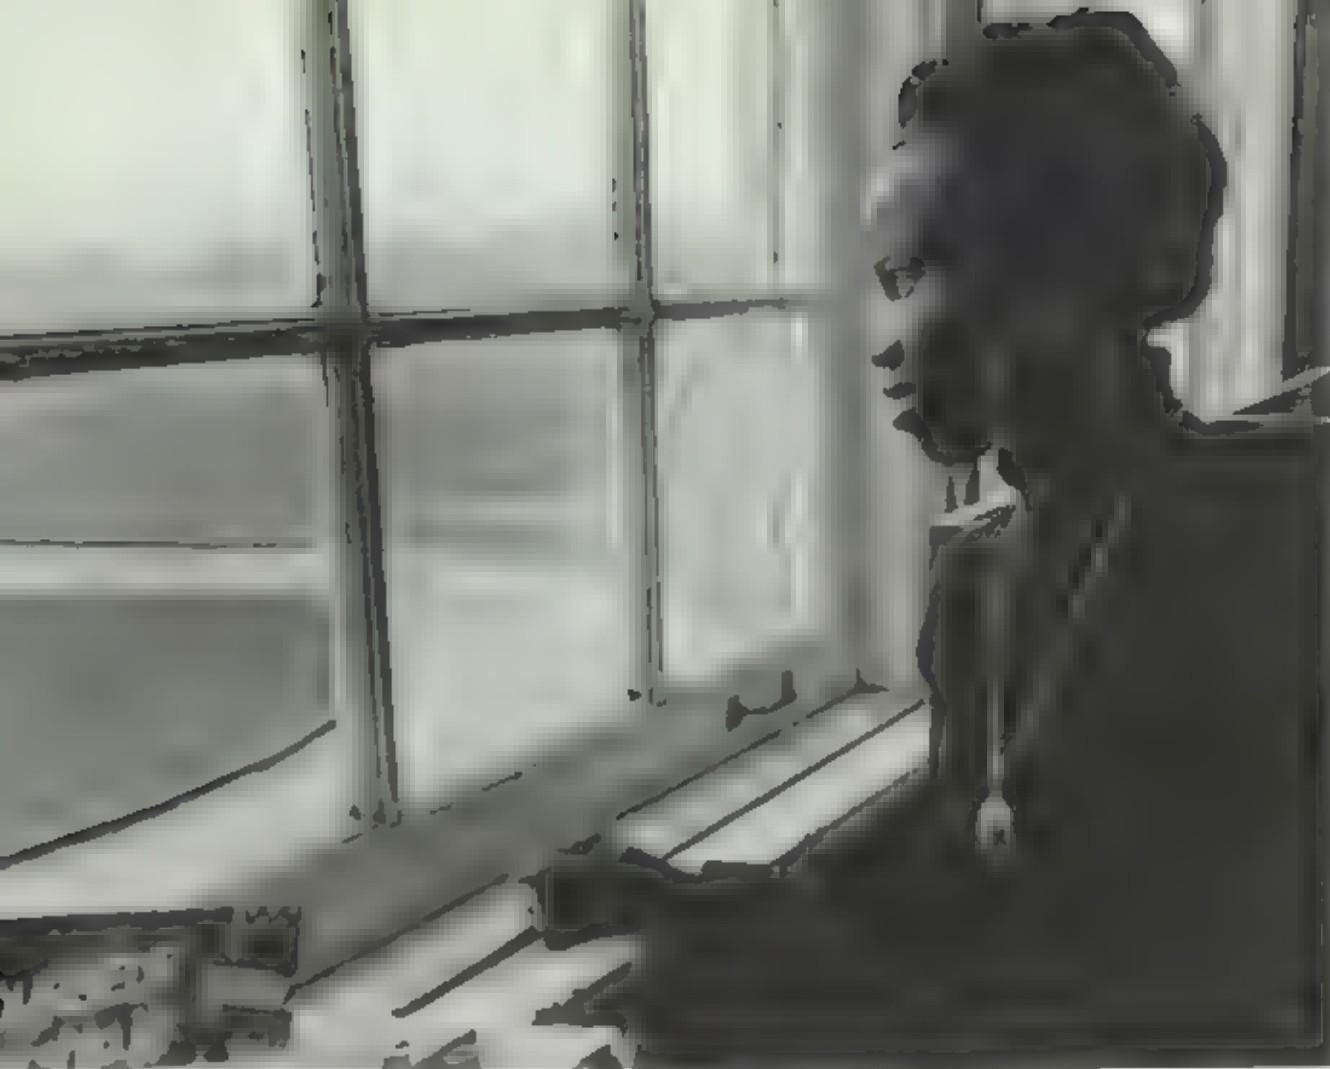

People who have not had the esoteric privilege of being a Student Council member must wonder what kind of administrative secrets are revealed to these select few? Does the administration ever consider the feasibility of proposals put forth by the college's representatives? Did Dr. Heath really bite his nails when confronted with the rampant noise of the faculty? We may not.

But really what does the Student Council do? They talk and ad lib and argue and talk again and make lists and tear them up and talk some more. And after they're done talking the President says, "Does anyone have anything else to say?" And someone always does.

And if by some divine blessing a proposal is written up (in good English) and agreed upon and submitted, if this ever should occur, then it must face the Administration, and the Faculty Meeting and the School Committee. Nothing could batte its way through these least of all a feeble Student Council request.

Hang on to your hopes, my friends
That's an easy thing to say,
But if your hopes should pass away,
Simply pretend that you can build them again
Look around,
The grass is high,
The fields are ripe
It's the springtime of my life
Seasons change w th the scenery,
Weaving time in a tapestry
Won't you stop and remember me,
At any convenient time?

Your books give me wisdom. All that encyclopedic human thought created in the centuries is compressed to a little lump in my skull. I know that I am cleverer than you all.

And I despise your books; despise all wordly blessings and wisdom. Everything is void, fruitless, visionary and delusive to a stranger. Though you be proud and wise and beautiful, yet will death wipe you from the face of the earth like the vices underground; and your posterity, your history, and the immortality of your mortal genius will be as frozen fog, burnt down together with the terrestrial globe.

You are mad and gone the wrong way. You take falsehood for truth and ugliness for beauty. You would marvel suddenly apple and orange trees should bear frogs and lizards instead of fruit, and roses should begin to breathe the odor of a sweating horse. So do I marvel at you who have battered heaven for nothing. I do not want to understand you.

WITHIN YOU WITHOUT YOU

We were talking—about the space between us all
And the people—who hide themselves behind a wall of illusion Never glimpse the truth—then it's far too late—when they pass away
We were talking—about the love we all could share—when we find it To try our best to hold it there—with our love
With our love—we could save the world
—if they only knew
Try to realise it's all within yourself no-one else can make you change
And to see you're really only very small, and life flows on within you and without you
We were talking—about the love that's gone so cold and the people, Who gain the world and lose their soul—they don't know—they can't see—are you one of them?
When you've seen beyond yourself—then you may find, peace of mind, is waiting there—
And the time will come when you see we're all one, and life flows on within you and without you

—George Harrison

1973
